Six' Back Devaluing Of Dollar

Love Seen Part Of Parity Reform

BRUSSELS, Sept. 13 (AP)—The six Common Market finance ministers tonight adopted the road outlines for a reorganization of the ailing world monetary system...

While the ministers did not sell out dollar devaluation in their communiqué, their intention was clear when they called for a realignment of the major world currencies...

Albert Coppe, a Common Market commissioner for social affairs, told newsmen the ministers were agreed that the dollar should be devalued...

Even with references to the dollar intact, he said, the original commission draft was the United States'...

Dutch Finance Minister Ruelof Nelissen told newsmen during a break in the meeting that the ministers were seeking a "modification of the dollar and many other currencies."

Where Were Bank Robbers? Where the £500,000 Was...

LONDON, Sept. 13 (AP)—Sherlock Holmes would have perched the door to the vault. He'd have found Professor Moriarty inside.

Scotland Yard didn't. Result: one bank robbed of $500,000 when the police knew he would be but couldn't track down which one.

A ham radio operator in northwest London phoned Scotland Yard late Saturday night and said he had picked up short-wave radio chat on walkie-talkies between two bank robbers...

Khrushchev Is Buried in Moscow

By Robert G. Kaiser

MOSCOW, Sept. 13 (WP)—Nikita S. Khrushchev was buried here today in a coffin draped with red and black cloth under a gray and drizzly autumn sky.

Perhaps 150 Russians joined foreign newsmen and dozens of police in Moscow's Novodevichy cemetery to pay final respects to the former leader of the Soviet Union, who lay in an open coffin covered with flowers during the brief ceremony.

'Time for Major Negotiations' Nixon Panel Urges World Fiscal Talks

By Edwin L. Dale Jr.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 13 (NYT)—A presidential commission, calling for a "new realism" in the nation's foreign economic and trade policy, says, "The time has come to begin immediately a major series of international negotiations with the long-term aim of elimination of all barriers to international trade and capital movements within 25 years."

The report, with its 307 pages and 147 recommendations, was formally presented to President Nixon today by the commission chairman, Albert L. Williams, former president of International Business Machines Corp.

rather than as an objective to be achieved within self-contained compartments of trade, investment or finance.

Among the objectives the United States should seek to achieve, the report said, were "reform of the international monetary system," reduction of import-limiting effects of the agricultural program of the European Com-

9 Hostages, 28 Convicts Slain As Prison in N.Y. Is Stormed

Many Hurt; 29 Hostages Are Freed

ATTICA, N. Y., Sept. 13 (UPI)—Nine hostages and 28 convicts were killed today at Attica State Prison as more than 1,700 state troopers, National Guardsmen and sheriff's deputies stormed the facility.

The insurgent inmates had held 38 hostages—guards and administrative personnel—since last Thursday. Twenty-nine hostages were freed, including four in critical condition.

The assault was ordered with "extreme reluctance" by State Corrections Commissioner Russell G. Oswald after consultation with Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller following an ultimatum to the rebellious prisoners that they release the hostages and return to their cells.

Mr. Oswald declared, "Further delay and negotiations would have jeopardized more lives."

President Nixon telephoned Gov. Rockefeller today to express support for the governor's actions in dealing with the rebellion, the Associated Press reported. Deputy presidential press secretary Gerald L. Warren told newsmen that Gov. Rockefeller had telephoned the White House shortly after the storming of the prison and talked to an unnamed Nixon aide.

RELEASED—Guards restrain fellow guard who was held hostage by prison inmates. Witnesses say he ranted and raved at his captors after his release yesterday.

'I Don't Have The Heart To Kill You'

ATTICA, N.Y., Sept. 13 (AP)—One of the released prison hostages, Capt. Elmer Huehn, reported today that his life was spared because the convict assigned to kill him whispered: "I don't have the heart to do it. I'm only going to prick you."

Brought to Court-Martial Calley Refuses to Testify As Witness in Medina Case

PORT MCPHERSON, Ga., Sept. 13 (UPI)—First Lt. William L. Calley Jr. refused to testify today at the court-martial of his former commander, Capt. Ernest L. Medina, and Capt. Medina's attorney said he would prove that Lt. Calley "was solely responsible for the massacre at My Lai."

vice of his attorney, however, and neither the court nor Capt. Medina's attorney, F. Lee Bailey, pressed the point.

Economic, War Aid to Hanoi Is Detailed by Soviet Union

WASHINGTON, Sept. 13 (WP)—The Soviet Union has made public the most detailed account yet of its military and economic support for North Vietnam, obviously to enhance its position in the rivalry with China for influence in Hanoi.

Defense Secretary Melvin R. Laird recently said that estimates here show that the Soviet Union provides North Vietnam with $500 million worth of military assistance a year, or 65 percent of Hanoi's foreign aid, with China providing about 25 percent of outside assistance.

The criminal lawyer also promised that the defense would produce witnesses to show that Lt. Calley was solely responsible for the deaths of civilians at My Lai, and that "Capt. Medina knew absolutely nothing about it."

10 Die in 200-Car Pile-Up on British Road

MANCHESTER, England, Sept. 13 (Reuters)—Ten people were killed and at least 60 injured today when 200 vehicles collided in a series of pile-ups on both sides of a foggy divided superhighway near here.

The wreckage spread for over a mile and rescue vehicles had trouble getting through to help. Some of those who died were trapped in blazing cars and trucks, and many of the rescued had to be cut free.

conscious for a quarter of an hour. One ambulance crew member said: "This is one of the worst crashes I have ever come across... it's just like a battlefield. There were wrecked cars and lorries everywhere."

Pope Changes Church's Ritual For Confirmation

ROME, Sept. 13 (NYT)—Pope Paul VI changed the ritual of confirmation, one of the seven sacraments of the Roman Catholic Church, by an apostolic constitution published today.

The reform consists mainly in the adoption of what the pontiff termed in his decree a "very ancient formula" in use in Eastern churches.

Bishops and certain other Roman Catholic churchmen explicitly authorized to administer confirmation will henceforth do so by anointing the person receiving the sacrament and pronouncing the Latin words "Accipe signaculum domini Spiritus Sancti" or an approved translation.

The new confirmation formula may be rendered in English as "Accept the sign of the gift of the Holy Spirit," but no version in English or any other modern language has yet been authorized. The new ritual is obligatory as of Jan. 1.

Church doctrine defines confirmation as the conferral of grace on baptized persons strengthening them for the production of the Christian faith.

Khrushchev Is Buried in Moscow

his lips quivered. "The sky is crying with us too," he added, as rain fell lightly.

"I won't talk about the great statesman," Sergei continued. "In recent days the newspapers of the whole world, with rare exceptions, and all radio stations have talked about this. I will not evaluate the contributions which Nikita Sergeevich, my father, made. I don't have the right to do that. History will do that. . . ."

"The only thing I can say is that he left no one indifferent. There are people who love him, and people who hate him, but no one can pass him by without turning to look. . . . A man has gone from us who had the right to be called a man. Unfortunately, there are very few such real people. . . ."

Sergei's reference to "the newspapers of the whole world, with rare exceptions," was an oblique commentary on the official Soviet reaction to Mr. Khrushchev's death. There have been no obituaries published here, no commentary on Mr. Khrushchev's role in Soviet and world history. Today's editions of Pravda and Izvestia carried only tiny six-line announcements of the death of "special pensioner" Khrushchev. The same announcement was broadcast here today. Mr. Khrushchev died Saturday after a heart attack at the age of 77.

When he finished his brief remarks today, Sergei Khrushchev a taller and thinner version of his father, with more hair—introduced two other speakers.

The first was a woman, whose name Sergei had to read from a piece of paper—Nadesha Dimanshteyn. She was introduced as an old colleague of Mr. Khrushchev from the Ukraine. She too stepped up on the pile of dirt, her plain tan shoes sinking slightly into the soft earth, and gave what seemed to be a rehearsed speech.

Mr. Khrushchev, she said, was "an outstanding proletarian who showed us younger people an example of fortitude and heroism, an example of unbending will and unbending passion in defending the party line. . . ."

Lost in the Taiga

Finally a young man named Vladimir Vasilyev stood on the pile of dirt: "It is very difficult for me to talk," he said, "but somewhere lost in the forests of the Taiga (in Siberia) is the grave of my father, executed in the tragic year of 1937 (presumably at Stalin's orders). It was Nikita Sergeevich who re-established the honor and dignity of our fallen parents. . . ."

With that reference to Mr. Khrushchev's role as the great de-Stalinizer—perhaps his greatest contribution to the history of this country—this improvised substitute for a formal funeral service was over.

Guests were given the opportunity to walk past the coffin as a small band played Beethoven's funeral march, a traditional part of Russian funerals. Nikita Sergeevich was dressed in a white shirt, black tie and suit. His lips were pursed in an unnatural position and the face was waxen, but the famous profile was unmistakable.

The line of mourners who squeezed through the press of reporters and plainclothes policemen was quite long, and Nina Petrovna, Mr. Khrushchev's wife of 48 years, looked across the coffin into the faces of every one of them.

She wore a simple dark gray coat and a black shawl over her head, and though she dabbed her eyes occasionally, she generally maintained an air of sad dignity. The interment rain did not visibly affect her, though it did induce one man in the party to hold an umbrella over the head of the corpse.

Mr. Khrushchev's three daughters, Yulya, Gelena and Rada, were all at the funeral, as was his son-in-law, the former editor of Izvestia, Alexei Adzimbet. The daughters had more trouble than Nina Petrovna holding back tears.

After all who wanted to had walked past, Mrs. Khrushchev tearfully put her hand on the forehead of her son, Alexander Otkin, in the family then did the same. Workmen then put the top on the coffin and nailed it down.

The casket was carried a few feet to the grave, and two ropes were strung under it. The band played the Soviet national anthem, and a man stood at the head of the grave holding a red pillow on which all of Mr. Khrushchev's 37 medals were pinned. Cemetery workers lowered the coffin into the grave, and onlookers tossed handfuls of dirt into it.

other meeting sources said France was reluctant to be pinned down on a franc revaluation.

Asked if France now was ready to join other Western nations in a general realignment of parties, Mr. Nelissen answered: "Yes, France is willing to agree to this now that it will be done in a worldwide approach."

At the outset of today's meeting, France's Finance Minister Valéry Giscard d'Estaing indicated his support for the plan, by congratulating the commission on what he termed an excellent working paper.

His main sparring partner among the five other ministers—Mr. Schiller—already was known to support the general outlines of the commission plan.

But after the conference Mr. Giscard d'Estaing said, "I do not have a delegation to express its particular satisfaction by affirming that its thesis has won. But now it has become a community viewpoint."

The communiqué included a basic six-point package with these points:

- There should be a selective realignment of parties among the leading Western currencies.
- Concerted pressure should be exerted to bring about cancellation of the 10 percent U.S. surtax on imports, which the ministers feel is "distorting" efforts to set new priorities.
- Effective international measures should be adopted to combat the speculative movement of currencies.
- The standard of international currencies should continue to be expressed in gold, but gradually expanded to include special drawing rights to the International Monetary Fund while the roles of the dollar and pound sterling were reduced.
- All countries should respect their obligations to adjust their balances of payments. This appeared specifically directed at the United States, which has had payments deficits for seven of the last 10 years.
- The International Monetary Fund's authority should be strengthened.

Bonn Promises Not to Buy In Deadlocked Berlin Talks

BONN, Sept. 13 (AP)—Chancellor Willy Brandt's government served notice today that it will not budge in a translation dispute which has deadlocked negotiations over Berlin.

With no sign that the East Germans are ready to back down, further stalemate seemed inevitable in the two-tiered negotiations being resumed in Bonn and West Berlin tomorrow.

The government's position has not altered. This apparently applies to both sides, government spokesman Ruediger von Weizsäcker said at a news conference today.

He said East German State Secretary Michail Kohl will fly to Bonn tomorrow to take up the third round of his negotiations with State Secretary Egon Bahr of West Germany.

Sleepover Possible

He said that provision has been made for Mr. Kohl to stay in Bonn if necessary.

The Bahr-Kohl talks aim to implement improvements in the situation of Communist-entrusted Berlin provided for in the Berlin agreement signed by the United States, the Soviet Union, Britain and France two weeks ago.

The second round of the talks broke up in East Berlin last Thursday with Bonn accusing the East Germans of using a last ditch threat from the mutually agreed German translation of the four-power accord, employed as a negotiating basis. They are working on practical details regarding traffic access and travel rights of West Berliners.

Mr. Von Weizsäcker reaffirmed today that the government believes there is no purpose in getting down to negotiations until both sides have agreed on a basic text.

His attitude is that there was agreement over the text. The East Germans do not deny this, he said. He said there has been no contact between Mr. Bahr and Mr. Kohl since they last met.

Asked how tomorrow's talks could make progress if neither side budged on the translation issue, he said: "If there is no unity tomorrow, new attempts could be made the day after or next week."

9 Hostages, 28 Inmates Die In Storming of N.Y. Prison about 500 were thought to be actively backing the rebellion.

The assault started with a small helicopter sent to one corner of the huge cellblock "D" building to divert the attention of the rebels. Soon two larger Army helicopters moved in, dumping what one official called "tons" of tear gas on the building.

"Surrender peacefully. You will not be harmed," a bullhorn blared to the prisoners. "Surrender the hostages. Surrender the hostages. Lie down on the floor and put your hands on your head."

State troopers and deputies opened fire and stormed through the front gate toward the cellblock, halted for several moments by barricades at every intersection.

8 Bodies Found

When they entered the outer part of the cellblock, they found eight bodies.

"It was horrible, just unbelievable," one trooper said.

Twenty minutes after the assault began, a National Guard artillery battalion entered with several hundred men and Red Cross ambulances. Three hours later, a plea went out for more ambulances to bring out the dead and injured from the prison.

An Army demolition team discovered explosives inside the prison and said the prisoners had dug underground tunnels and wired them with homemade bombs.

The fighting did not end until about five hours after the assault began.

Mr. Oswald said he had no alternative but to order the assault because prisoners were becoming increasingly well-armed with knives made in a prison shop they controlled. He said they also were erecting barricades that soon would have been difficult to break through.

"Situation Deteriorating"

"It became apparent to me that the situation was rapidly deteriorating and it was evident the prisoners were not going to cooperate," he said. "Their behavior was not too much different than that behavior on the streets, where several were convicted of manslaughter and murder."

Capt. Elmer Huhn, one of the freed hostages, said the prisoners "became more militant" after the ultimatum was delivered.

"We were so near death so many times in the last five days, it's unbelievable, unbelievable," Capt. Huhn said.

Investigation Ordered

A spokesman for Gov. Rockefeller said some of the hostage guards and civilian prison employees had been killed hours before the all-out assault on the cellblock.

Gov. Rockefeller said in a statement: "The tragedy was brought on by the highly organized revolutionary tactics of militants who rejected all efforts at a peaceful settlement. . . . I have ordered a full investigation of all the factors leading to this uprising, includ-

Civil Guards Kill Man in Madrid

By Miguel Angel MADRID, Sept. 13 (UPI)—Armed national police workers' districts and building sites in Madrid after civil guards shot an organizer of the "Barricade" commission. The tributing leaflets urging workers to join a higher pay to compensate price increases in bus fares and olive oil, the man resisted signing a civil guard.

Labor sources press the organizers' death to demand an enlargement of the 5,000 out of 150,000 workers have stopped. Strikes are illegal in Spain. The workers' commission of Communist, Catholic Socialists and other groups the opposition to the late Francisco Franco's rule. The guards shot a large number of people.

Police have been set down on any attempt to a major strike against the building workers by a worker priest was charged with the strike. More than 500 police fired on organizers passing on near a building site.

Police announced that the today's shooting of Falcón, 30, was followed when he shot a gun away from a group seeking to arrest him, companions in a Madrid police said. He was the legal organizer to be police since the summer when civil guards shot construction workers, southern Spain a three.

Police said Mr. Falcón, a member of the outlawed Communist party, had a record of illegal activity for indoctrination in companions—two were charged with "perturbing order."

Khrushchev Is Paid Tribute By French Reds, Schumann

From Wire Dispatches PARIS, Sept. 13.—The French Communist party paid warm tribute today to the late Nikita S. Khrushchev as the initiator of peaceful coexistence between East and West.

Georges Marchais, acting secretary-general of the party, said French Communists had no right to judge Mr. Khrushchev's domestic policies, but should remember him for having ended Josef Stalin's personality cult and for "opening for the world Communist movement a new stage in its struggle for Socialism and world peace."

Mr. Khrushchev was "an impassioned and persuasive advocate of the cause of Socialism and Communism," Mr. Marchais said in a statement. "He also led the way toward the fruitful development of French-Soviet friendship and cooperation."

"We" and "Zest" Noted

The Communist daily newspaper l'Humanité said in an editorial: "His flashes of wit, his zest, his repartee became legendary, even though his dynamism was perhaps not always free of impetuosity."

The French foreign minister, Maurice Schumann, called Mr. Khrushchev "the man of the thaw" between East and West. "He was the first Soviet leader who was removed from power without suffering tragic consequences," Mr. Schumann noted.

Except for Yugoslavia, the Communist nations remained virtually silent on the death.

The majority of Prague's papers, for example, printed this morning a one-sentence announcement, quoting the Soviet party newspaper, Pravda.

The news was printed page five in the official East German Communist newspaper, Neues Deutschland, which used the brief announcement by Pravda.

In Poland, the Communist party newspaper, Trybuna Ludu, and the popular daily Zycie Warszawy carried identical, 40-word

Single Rose

Five workers in blue smocks filed the grave and made a neat mound on top of it. Nina Petrovna laid a single rose atop the mound, and the cemetery workers then propped four big wreaths around it, two from family and "comrades," and set up a marble slab, about 20 inches by 30, engraved simply in gold:

Khrushchev Nikita Sergeevich 17-IV-1894—11-IX-1971

Then Sergei Khrushchev propped an old framed photograph of his father on a wreath above this marker, and the guests who had brought hundreds of flowers, began to lay them around the grave.

Nina Petrovna and the rest of the family walked back through the cemetery, past the oft-guarded graves of other prominent officials and citizens buried in Novodevichye. It is a place reserved for important but by no means the most important people.

Mr. Khrushchev's immediate neighbors in a remote and unkempt corner of the cemetery include a bass singer from the Bolshoi Opera and a former member of the Soviet supreme court.

More famous Russians—Gogol, Chekhov, Prokofiev, Stalin's first wife—are also buried in Novodevichye, but in another, more attractive area behind its wall.

Invited Guests

Mrs. Khrushchev left the cemetery in a small black Volga sedan. About 100 onlookers on the street outside saw her leave. Police admitted only invited guests and newsmen into the cemetery (reportedly normal for a funeral in Novodevichye). The area around the cemetery was screened off for several blocks, and the cemetery remained closed all day, although the funeral was over by 1 p.m.

'Anti-Social Act'

MOSCOW, Sept. 13 (Reuters).—Pyotr Yakir, son of one of Stalin's military purge victims, said he was held by police today and prevented from attending the funeral of Mr. Khrushchev.

He told newsmen he and his wife were taken to a police station where they were told it had become known that Mr. Yakir was going to commit an "anti-social act."

He said he was released some hours later, after the police captain detaining him had received word that the funeral had ended. He was given no details of what the alleged act was to be, he added.

His father, Gen. Iona Yakir, was shot in 1937 as Stalin launched his purge of the senior Red Army officers. His name was restored to the history books by Mr. Khrushchev.

mon Market, the end of the Common Market's special trade deals with a number of non-member countries, removal of non-tariff obstacles to trade and creation of new rules to limit various countries' export subsidies.

The report concluded that the United States should seek to preserve the basic elements of the "multilateral trade and payments system" that had prevailed for a quarter-century, including such institutions as the General Agreement on Tariffs and Trade and the International Monetary Fund. It suggested that the GATT rules governing trade be made more explicit in such areas as export subsidies, with the initial agreements to include, if necessary, only "key countries."

Heath, Faulkner and Lynch To Meet Sept. 27 at Chequers

By Alfred Friendly LONDON, Sept. 13 (UPI)—The prime ministers of Britain, Northern Ireland and the Republic of Ireland will meet Sept. 27 and 28 to discuss possibilities for ending the nightmarish Ulster.

It was officially announced here today that the tripartite talks will be held at Chequers, the country home of British Prime Minister Edward Heath. Earlier hopes that the meetings could take place prior to the special session of Parliament, recalled from recess to debate the Ulster problem Sept. 22 and 23, apparently could not be realized.

Then explosions went off in and around Belfast tonight and police said four persons were seriously injured in one of them, at a private home. UPI reports no other injuries were reported.

The meeting of Mr. Heath, Irish Premier Jack Lynch and Ulster Prime Minister Brian Faulkner is expected to focus on two paramount subjects:

- Abatement of violence in Northern Ireland by curbing the activities of the illegal Irish Republican Army at its base in Eire.
- Measures to restructure the government of Ulster to give the Catholic minority there a satisfactory and equitable role in it.

In preliminary political fencing before today's announcement, Mr. Lynch had insisted that the talks must be without conditions on topics for discussion, meaning that he reserved the right to talk about the ultimate unification of the six northern counties with the 26 in the republic. At the same time, Mr. Faulkner, in an audio radio interview over the weekend, insisted that he would not discuss "the border" and that Ulster's constitutional status as an integral part of the United Kingdom was "not for sale."

But both assertions were obviously for home consumption—Mr. Lynch to assure a population basically sympathetic to the idea of unification that he, too, cherished that goal, and Mr. Faulkner's to allay fears of Ulster

Protestants in Northern Ireland

Protestants in Northern Ireland dwell seriously if at all on union. In fact, the disunion is not only a fact of life, but a reality. Not only Mr. Faulkner, Heath, but both of the major political parties reject unification and take the position to come about only through majority will of the Ulsterian attitude that is not in sight.

The hope is that Mr. and Mrs. Faulkner's very far-reaching plans for the structure and form of Ulster government in 1972 to end its 60 years of Protestant domination by Catholics a fair and share of decision-making executive and administrative. In return, Mr. Faulkner would agree to what he far refused: clamping the activities of the IRA.

Opposes 'Party Jockeying'

U.S. Governors Hear Agnew Urge Unity to Fight Inflation

By David S. Broder

SAN JUAN, Puerto Rico, Sept. 13 (WP)—Vice-President Agnew today challenged the Democratic party's governors to "put away partisan jockeying" and support President Nixon's economic policies.

The Democrats went into a middle tonight to frame their response, but its likely tone was indicated by Gov. Milton Shapp of Pennsylvania, who said: "Patriotism is no substitute for a program of substance. President Nixon hasn't faced economic reality yet."

The economic argument dominated a full day of private and public discussions among administration officials, congressional leaders and state executives here for the 63d annual National Governors' Conference.

Among the main developments: ● Long-time advocates of revenue-sharing were cheered by reports that House Ways and Means Committee Chairman Wilbur Mills, D., Ark., might approve a version of that plan—not called by that name—which would put $5 billion a year into state and local treasuries.

● Mr. Agnew signaled an administration willingness to compromise with Senate Finance Committee Chairman Russell B. Long, D., La., who made a major attack on the Nixon welfare reform bill in a speech to the governors this morning.

● Representatives of the administration lobbied behind the scenes to keep the Democrats, who took over majority control of the conference in last year's elections, from scuttling the support of Mr. Nixon's two key programs, revenue-sharing and welfare reform.

● Gov. George C. Wallace of Alabama served notice that he will try to bring the controversial busing question before the conference at its final session on Wednesday.

What some governors hailed as a breakthrough in the long fight for revenue-sharing was a staff proposal, drawn up by aides of Mr. Mills, for a two-part package of new revenue aid to states, counties and cities.

As circulated here, one part would provide 3.5 billion a year to cities and counties for the next three to five years, for use at their discretion in certain broad areas of public need, excluding education.

The second part would be a permanent appropriation to the states, starting at $1.5 billion a year and possibly increasing as federal revenues increase, for any use they decide.

Governors who had been briefed on the plan said they had been told Mr. Mills indicated it might pass the Ways and Means Committee as early as next month. Others, who recalled similar optimistic reports from Washington at previous conferences, said they were skeptical.

Yesterday, Mr. Agnew volunteered to become the personal liaison man between the White House and the nation's governors, in a move that some governors interpreted as an effort to enhance his standing with the President and his prospects for re-nomination to a second term.

Mr. Agnew coupled the offer with an invitation from President Nixon for the executive committee of the National Governors' Conference to meet with him at the White House on Thursday to discuss the second phase of his new economic policy. The executive committee accepted both the liaison offer and the White House invitation—thus giving the administration an opening-rod victory in the political maneuvering surrounding the meeting of the governors.

Kahane Visiting London in Drive For Soviet Jews

LONDON, Sept. 13 (AP)—Rabbi Meir Kahane of the militant Jewish Defense League flew into London today to heighten European thinking about the status of Jews in the Soviet Union.

"I am here to radicalize the Jewish efforts in this country," he said on arrival from New York, where his group is based. "What we must do is to escalate the forms of protest here and make sure that when there are protests in America the same thing happens in Europe at the same time," he continued.

"I am not a supporter of violence. We want nonviolent but militant protest."

During his 24-hour visit, before going to Israel, he intends to take part in a torchlight rally in Hyde Park and a march to the Soviet Embassy in Kensington Gardens.

Swiss Report Only 51 Jobless

BERN, Sept. 13 (Reuters).—While some West European countries are counting their unemployed in hundreds of thousands, booming Switzerland announced today that 51 people of working age in the nation of six million were registered as unemployed at the end of August.

This compared with 53 the previous month and 34 a year ago. Job vacancies in Switzerland rose from 3,690 in July to 3,843 at the end of last month, according to official statistics.

Nader Pleads For No Delay On Air Bags

By Christopher D. Lydon

WASHINGTON, Sept. 13 (AP)—Ralph Nader, back in the auto safety field where his consumer campaigns began, urged Transportation Secretary John A. Volpe yesterday to hold firm against auto manufacturers' pressures to delay the installation of air bags in 1974 models.

The National Highway Traffic Safety Administration, an agency of the Department of Transportation, has said that air bags—which inflate instantly in a crash—could save 5,000 lives in the first year after they were installed in the front and back seats of new cars.

The agency has ordered that the bags or some similar crash protection be installed in new models no later than mid-August, 1973. But the auto makers, who are challenging the order in court, are lobbying privately to have it reversed in the executive branch.

A spokesman for Mr. Volpe confirmed that representatives of the auto industry, particularly of Chrysler, had been pressing the department for a postponement.

Some consideration is being given to extending the time when air bags would be required," the spokesman said. "But no decision has been reached."

He added that any postponement would be for at least a year, since the starting date for air-bag installation will coincide with the annual cycle of new models.

In a public letter to Mr. Volpe, Mr. Nader noted that the secretary had consistently supported the air-bag idea, "to a point of high personal identification with its life-saving value."

Mr. Nader continued: "You have large suppliers of this feature showing how practicable the feature is and how capable they are in tooling up for production. You have a solid unanimity of your National Highway Traffic Safety Administration staff and director [Douglas W. Tom] for no further postponement."

"Nothing—not technical capability, production capability or any other obstacle, except the corporate avarice for maximizing profits—stands in the way of your decision to uphold the present deadline."

At another point in his letter, Mr. Nader noted that some of the auto companies—not including General Motors, the largest—have objected to the noise and potential injury involved in air-bag operations. But all the industry objections have been refuted by the air-bag manufacturers and Department of Transportation staff, Mr. Nader said.

2 Die as Guinean Jet Crashes in Ivory Coast

ABIDJAN, Ivory Coast, Sept. 13 (AP)—A Soviet-built MIG-15 jet fighter of the Guinean Air Force crashed in the Ivory Coast Saturday, killing the pilot and co-pilot, it was disclosed today.

At the same time, a Guinean MIG-17 made an emergency landing at the airfield of Odieme, 400 miles northeast of Abidjan, after running out of fuel. Odieme is 30 miles inside Ivory Coast territory. It was assumed that the two incidents were due to a navigational error.

Pompidou to See Press

PARIS, Sept. 13 (Reuters).—President Georges Pompidou today announced that he will hold a news conference on Sept. 23. He is expected to discuss the world monetary crisis. The press conference will be Mr. Pompidou's first since January, and will be held just before the meeting of the International Monetary Fund in Washington.

Art Thieves Strike Again In Italy, Loot Singer's Home

ROME, Sept. 13 (AP)—Art thieves struck again on a big scale in Italy today, making off with more than a score of paintings and other art works from raids in Rome, Bologna and a village near Venice.

Total value of the loot was estimated at over 110 million lire, or $176,000.

The thieves made their biggest haul at the Roman apartment of Boris Christoff, the Bulgarian-

Senate Panel Opens Hearings On Gun Curbs

WASHINGTON, Sept. 13 (UPI).—The Senate juvenile delinquency subcommittee opened a new round of hearings on gun controls today with Chairman Birch Bayh, D., Ind., accusing the administration of failure to keep guns out of the hands of criminals.

Sen. Bayh's panel is hearing testimony on proposed legislation to outlaw handguns, especially the cheap "Saturday night specials"—low-caliber pistols made from parts purchased abroad and assembled by manufacturers in the United States.

The Gun Control Act of 1968 barred importation of cheap foreign-made guns but left a loophole allowing foreign-made gun parts to be brought into the country. Legislation before the committee would close this loophole.

In an opening statement, Sen. Bayh accused the administration of refusing to send witnesses to testify before his panel and declared this was proof that neither Attorney General John N. Mitchell nor President Nixon is for prohibiting the sale of "Saturday night specials."

He also told the panel that the Treasury Department had refused to provide information on the sale of pistols. The senator said that of the 10,000 murders by guns last year 43 percent involved small-caliber (.22 or .25) pistols.

Roman Judges Rule Amnesty Protects Bogus Doctorates

ROME, Sept. 13 (NYT).—Some Italian university graduates, each holding a doctorate, breathed easier today when two Roman judges ruled jointly that a recent general amnesty had wiped out possible criminal charges of fraud in obtaining their degrees.

The degree holders under investigation were alleged to have bought the theses that are required to be graduated with a doctorate in law, economics, liberal arts and other subjects. Academic ghost writers were said to have supplied such dissertations.

According to judicial sources, the prices paid for the theses ranged from $500 to $1,200.

The sources suggested that although the penal proceedings had been quashed by the amnesty of May, 1970, there was still a possibility that the questionable degrees might be administratively annulled.

Unlikely Decision

Such a decision, which seems unlikely at this stage, could lead to an upheaval in Italy's professional life and civil service. Many of the questionable "doctor" and "doctress" are known to be holding jobs for which university degrees are required. Some are

Jordan Bids UN Act on Jerusalem

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y., Sept. 13 (UPI)—Jordan today called for an urgent meeting of the Security Council to stop what it called "illegal and unilateral Israeli measures designed to change the character of Jerusalem."

Jordanian Ambassador Baha U-Din Toukan submitted the government's request to Council President Toru Nagakawa, of Japan.

The council will meet tomorrow to take up the membership application of the Persian Gulf state of Qatar, but will not deal with Jerusalem, a UN spokesman said.

Informed sources said the Jordanian complaint would be taken up either Wednesday or later in the week because Syria had asked for a delay.

Cairo Trial Continues For Sabry, Sharaf

CAIRO, Sept. 13 (UPI)—Four hours of testimony were heard today in the conspiracy trial of former Vice-President Aly Sabry and other defendants, Cairo radio said today.

The radio said the three-man court will hear more arguments tomorrow from lawyers representing Mr. Sabry and Sami Sharaf, former state minister for presidential affairs.

The prosecution has requested the death sentence for Mr. Sabry and Mr. Sharaf, who are charged with conspiring against President Anwar Sadat.

Theft in Paris Church

PARIS, Sept. 13 (AP)—Twenty 14th century paintings, representing the life and death of Christ, were stolen from a Paris church over the weekend, authorities reported.

The paintings, on wood and in the style of the Italian school, were missing from the Saint Nicholas des Champs church. The theft took place Saturday night or early yesterday morning, the parish priest reported.

Thieves Struck Again

The Piedemonte works were by little-known artists. Their disappearance followed the sensational thefts earlier this month of a Titian at the painter's birthplace of Pieve di Cadore and of three large paintings by Giambellino, another Venetian master, and a triptych by Vivarini from a church in Venice.

In Rome, Mr. Christoff hurried back from vacation to take inventory after the theft. Police said the thieves acted during the weekend, climbing to the singer's apartment from the outside and then breaking through a window and lowering the paintings and silverware with ropes to accomplices in the street.

Mr. Christoff said the most valuable pieces taken were a landscape painting by 17th century artist Marco Ricci and an 18th century work by Domenico Tiepolo entitled "Old Man with Child."

Also gone, he said, were a 16th century enameled Russian cross and a dozen icons dating from the 15th to the 17th centuries.

It was the second theft in a year of works owned by Mr. Christoff. Last October, he lost an ancient Russian tablet with an estimated value of 10 million lire, or $16,000.

In yet another theft, five 20th-century paintings were stolen from the Museum of Modern Art in Brescia, in northern Italy. Officials said three of the stolen paintings were the work of Francesco Filippini, and one was by Ernesto Treccani and another by Filippo de Pisis. Their value was not immediately disclosed.

Two Roman magistrates opened a pretrial investigation, and ordered the police to raid several of the organizations involved. The inquiry extended from Rome to Milan, Bologna and other university cities, and the number of suspects rose to 10,000.

They all faced punishment of up to one year imprisonment under a 46-year-old law against fraud in academic examinations.

Undaunted by the inquiry, some "research institutes" continue helping would-be doctors. One of them advertises in the daily press.

Britain Asked to Act, U.S. 'Bias' Decried

Egypt Wants Europe Initiative on Mideast

CAIRO, Sept. 13 (Reuters).—Egypt today asked Britain to take new Middle East initiatives in Europe, apparently having virtually written off U.S. peace efforts in the Middle East.

Foreign Minister Mahmoud Riad, at the first of a series of meetings with the British foreign secretary, Sir Alec Douglas-Home, complained that Egypt had waited two months in vain for news from Washington on the American peace campaign, the Middle East News Agency said.

Mr. Riad asked Sir Alec to use direct influence both on Washington and Tel Aviv to secure an Israeli withdrawal from territories occupied in the 1967 war, sources said.

Mr. Riad said the United States was still completely biased in favor of Israel.

He also said Britain should get together with its prospective partners in the European Economic Community—soon expected to comprise ten countries—to work on the problem.

Mr. Riad told Sir Alec—the first British foreign secretary to hold official talks here since before the 1956 Suez crisis—that Egypt did not expect miracles. Nevertheless it felt Britain had a wider role to play in the crisis, he said.

Sir Alec emphasized that the British government still considered the U.S. peace initiative alive, the sources said, and added that Britain would do all in its power to break the deadlock over an interim agreement for reopening the Suez Canal and for a complete settlement. Israel's security Agreement Is Noted The Egyptian side stressed that the canal could be cleared only if such an accord were directly linked with an overall settlement providing for withdrawal. Britain was understood to agree completely with this view.

American efforts toward a canal agreement have so far foundered. The Israelis refuse more than a small pullback and will not agree to Egyptian troops crossing the waterway, as Egyptian President Anwar Sadat insists.

Symbolizing the improved relationship between the two countries, Sir Alec and the Egyptian Minister for Economy, Mohammed Marseban, signed an agreement under which Egypt will pay $2 million compensation for British properties nationalized under the regime of the late President Gamal Abdel Nasser.

Cairo Editor, Jailed as Spy For U.S., Claims a 'Frame-Up'

BEIRUT, Sept. 13 (NYT).—An Egyptian editor now under a sentence of life imprisonment for spying for the United States has asserted that he was framed by a former Egyptian intelligence chief and that he had kept in touch with Americans in Cairo at the request of the late President Gamal Abdel Nasser.

A leading newspaper here yesterday reopened the case of Mustafa Amin, the founder of Cairo's prominent Akhbar Al Yom publishing house, who was arrested in July, 1965, in Alexandria along with a U.S. Embassy official, Bruce Taylor Odell. A court in Cairo sentenced Mr. Amin, now 57, to life imprisonment after he was found guilty of providing the Central Intelligence Agency with information centering on Egyptian security. Mr. Odell was identified by the authorities as the CIA contact in Cairo and declared persona non grata.

The Beirut daily Al Anwar, which employs Mr. Amin's twin brother, Ali, printed the text of a letter Mr. Amin sent to Nasser in December, 1965, pleading his innocence and accusing the intelligence chief at the time, Salah Nasser, of subjecting him to the worst kind of physical torture. The message, however, never reached the late Egyptian president.

"Crucified Me" "They stripped me naked, crucified me, plucked my hair, set wild dogs on me, and raped my fiancée in a cell next to mine where I could hear her scream," he said.

Mr. Amin suggested that Mr. Nasser deliberately framed him after hearing that President Nasser intended to make Mr. Amin the new intelligence chief. Mr. Amin also charged that President Nasser had asked him to keep him informed on all "communications received by the American Embassy."

Mr. Amin also said he had been instructed by the intelligence chief to inform him on the main U.S. Embassy personnel, particularly Mr. Odell.

Mr. Nasser himself is now serving a 15-year prison sentence. He was convicted by a Cairo military court after the six-day war with Israel in 1967 for his role in a conspiracy to overthrow the regime of President Nasser.

Edinburgh Festival

Royal Danish Ballet's Charm, Enthusiasm

By Oleg Kerensky

EDINBURGH, Sept. 13 (IHT).—The Royal Danish Ballet is one of the world's half-dozen leading companies and King's Theatre was sold out well in advance for all five of its performances during the last week of the Edinburgh Festival.

Admittedly the dancers suffered from the cramped, steeply-raked stage which made it particularly difficult for the men to move and jump with the freedom which is their special glory.

Nevertheless even minor Bouronville has a charm and fascination of its own, and the Danes brought two examples: "Le Conservatoire," which was left untranslated as "Konservatoriet" when it was brought to London some years ago.

"The Life Guards on Amager," consisting mainly of mime and folk-dance, fared better. It starts a bit slowly—there is no dancing during the first half—but the mime is amusing and naturalistic, not a bit like the conventional mime of the 19th-century Russian classic.

There is some sort of plot about Edvard, a lieutenant whose wife entices him flirting with the local girls and tricks him into flirting with her—shades of "Die Fledermaus"—but the important things are the way the social classes are differentiated and brought to life.

Dining Out in Tel Aviv:

Seafood From Israeli Waters

By Naomi Barry

TEL AVIV (IHT).—Israel has the potential bounty of the Mediterranean, the Red Sea and the Sea of Galilee.

La Barchetta, which opened in Tel Aviv six months ago during the year of the Great Tourist Invasion, has increased the boundaries of the Promised Land to include the surrounding waters.

The cooking is superb. The service is almost silken. The decor is agreeable. The conditioning is comfortable.

Two Reasons La Barchetta has a couple of sound reasons for excellence. It is a joint enterprise between Aldo Nahum, an Italian from Libya, who owns a successful local restaurant—the Gondola—and Dani, a former Milanese whose experience includes several years as the maitre d'hotel of the rooftop restaurant of the Cavalieri Hilton in Rome.

Dani made the selection. There is a menu, but most people simply ask: "Dani, what's good?" "After all, I am the menu. You come to read or to eat?"

We wanted to sample the maximum and old. Herewith a few of the high points. Clams of burl, gray mullet from the Sea of Galilee, had marinated for a day in white wine, oil, capers, olives, onion and garlic. The result is splendid.

Plain perfection is the trout amandine. The story has it that a bomb once destroyed the vivarium of Kibbutz Dan on the Lake of Kinneret.

Since the Barchetta is not a kosher restaurant, it serves lobster, clams, shrimps and oysters, which are forbidden by the dietary laws because they have neither fins nor scales.

From Elath come giant prawns, succulent beyond belief. Before cooking, the flesh is pried loose and then put back in the shell with a stuffing of minced shrimp, capers, eggs, anchovy, parsley, lemon juice, salt and pepper.

The calamari in a sauce provencale would be given an A-1 rating on any Mediterranean coast of Europe. The tentacles of squid are boiled in a fumet and then given a 10-minute reheating in a piquant sauce, typical of the lands of the sun, made with oil, garlic, peeled tomatoes, a quantity of chopped parsley, lemon juice, white wine, and a touch of cognac.

Minced salmon and tuna fish are combined with egg and formed into a free sculpture in the shape of a pear. This is breaded and deep-fried and terminated with sprigs of parsley to simulate the stem. The presentation is an adorable conerik. It pleased my eye enormously, my palate a little less.

BRIDGE

A dramatic deal from a New York tournament demonstrated that an expert could fall in a contract that a beginner would make without pausing for thought. East began the spectacular auction with a slightly eccentric pre-emptive bid of three diamonds.

South had so much reserve strength that he was happy to defend, and West had to make the opening lead. The lead-directing double eliminated spades and diamonds as possible leads, and West correctly diagnosed that his partner was void in clubs and wanted a ruff.

With any lead but a club, the slam would have been a certainty. The declarer would have drawn trumps, and used the trump entry to dummy to try the club finesse. If the finesse had lost, there would have been a discard for the potential heart loser, and if it had won there would have been a chance of an overtrick.

Graham Greene at 66: 'A Sort of Life'

By Israel Shenker

ANTIBES, France (NYT)—A since world war II Graham Greene, now 66, has found it harder and harder to write. It all takes longer and longer. "Age," he said, as though it were as painfully simple as that, and then he added: "Also one's afraid that one's said it oneself before. I find I forget a book very quickly after I've finished it, and then people write some critical work or other and point out the similarity between this situation in Book 8 and the situation in Book 2. It's boring. One wishes that one had remembered."

Graham Greene at Antibes. His autobiography is being published this week.

His autobiography up to age 27, "A Sort of Life," is being published by Simon & Schuster in the United States this week. "My chief sickness is getting easily bored—a symptom of manic depression. What I cherish most is probably escape from boredom, escape from oneself. That can come from loving somebody, or from a good wine, or from travel. Or from getting involved in something which isn't one's own problem."

A Novel

Before he attacks the difficulties of a new book, he moves restlessly about his apartment, constructing in his mind the story's essentials. "I hate sitting down to work. I'm plugging at a novel now which is not going easily. I've done about 65,000 words—there's another 20,000 to go. I don't work for very long at a time—about an hour and a half. That's all I can manage. One may come back in the evening after a good dinner, one's had a good drink, one may add a few little bits and pieces. It gives one a sense of achievement. One's done more than one's thought."

"It's like a strain on the eye-sight. I find that I have to know—even if I'm not writing it—where my character's sitting, what his movements are. It's this focusing, even though it's not focusing on the page, that strains my eyes, as though I were watching something too close. "I found it difficult to adjust to the passage of 60, as I dare say I felt at 50. Nothing good comes to me about growing old. I write less and it's more difficult to have the energy."

For the work now in progress, Mr. Greene has been devising for the character presented as an ex-priest, a theology which accommodates evil. "God in this theology is evil as well as good," explained the author. "So there's a night side and a day side, and we contribute to both. We are part of the evolution of God—and Hitler obviously adds the dark side of God, whilst Gandhi, John XXIII and Chavez add the day side."

"Talking as a Catholic, I would argue that Christ was a kind of overpowering expression of the day side—which was a guarantee that the day side could never be swamped. If God is torn as we are between the dark and the bright—and therefore suffers a certain division and anguish as we do—it makes Him a more sympathetic figure. "This is just playing with words, you know, just an amusing speculation," Mr. Greene added, as though he wanted to retreat, or at least hand the ancient problem of evil to the expert and let him puzzle and try for surprises.

A Summary

I asked Mr. Greene if he had done with his life. "I think I've accomplished a little bit and I've failed a good deal," he replied. "I've written about two or three good books. 'The Power and the Glory,' 'Travels With My Aunt' I think I'd put amongst them, and after that I'm not sure. I think 'The Quiet American' is not a bad book."

Conscience

"Some people would say that there was a sense of morality inculcated into man at the beginning, that conscience is inherited in most people. I don't think I've ever met anybody who was without a conscience. Environment would have an effect, a religious belief would have an effect. Happiness and misery have their effect, too."

"On her likes and her dislikes: 'I am for Frank Sinatra, Orson Welles, Peter O'Toole and money. I am against the war in Vietnam, new fashions, women's lib, newspaper photographers and the title of 'most glamorous grand mother.' Elizabeth Taylor has got the title now and I don't think she's lucky."

On Ernest Hemingway: "He never said we were in love. I bet you anything. I loved him and he loved me very much, but that's different—and I won't discuss it. I could talk about him for five hours."

On retriving: "Why should I retrieve? Give me one good reason." Among other projects, she hopes to sing in Munich during the 1972 Olympics. "She can be found."

ONLY FOUR MONTHS—The infant daughter of Peters, 45, daughter of the late Josef Stalin, and Peters, a Phoenix architect, is baptized in a Greek ceremony in Milwaukee. Asked later if she comment on the death of Nikita Khrushchev, Mrs. Peters said: "Oh, this event today is much more important."

PEOPLE: Marlene Yields To Lis Taylor

Reuters and the AP say she's 69. UPI, in two separate dispatches, put her down as 66 or 68. Whatever the case, it doesn't matter a fig to Marlene Dietrich, who returned to London Sunday after an absence of six years to give a benefit performance for the National Association for Mental Health. "I don't think of my age because I am not old," said Miss Dietrich in a rare and wide-ranging news conference. Among Marlene's bonus mots:

On her likes and her dislikes: "I am for Frank Sinatra, Orson Welles, Peter O'Toole and money. I am against the war in Vietnam, new fashions, women's lib, newspaper photographers and the title of 'most glamorous grand mother.' Elizabeth Taylor has got the title now and I don't think she's lucky."

the 1972 Olympics. "She can be found." On money: "I like a lot of money, but I couldn't afford to play it." Miss Dietrich, the American Rudolph Nisenzon, is aiding victims of Nazi concentration camps now living in the States.

On fashion: "There's nothing new. Everybody does what they want to do, but they do it in their own way. They're themselves from behind."

On keeping fit: "I'm not scrabbling myself, but I never lose weight. It bores me."

"One of my good friends, Marlene concluded, looked about the room. "I don't think I've ever talked about my life. I don't know about it. I don't know about it. I don't know about it."
